The Most Important Christmas Character A Christmas Carol, written by Charles Dickens. The character of Ebenezer Scrooge is one of the most popular Christmas characters. Ebenezer Scrooge was a mean, stingy man, but he changed his outlook on life after he was visited by three ghost stories. The first was about his business partner, Jacob Marley. Marley was a ghost in an old, black suit and had an old, black body. Marley didn't have any legs, and walked with his spades and covered in cobwebs. Marley's ghost told Scrooge about his business partner's poor living conditions. The second story that haunted Scrooge was about a poor boy named Tiny Tim. The third ghost story was about his nephew, Bob Cratchit. Tiny Tim had written a letter to his employer, Mr. Scrooge. The letter expressed Tiny Tim's appreciation for the money that Mr. Scrooge had given him and his family during the holidays. Because of his changed attitude, Ebenezer Scrooge became a happier person. Quotations from Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol "How much did it cost us in meat, in drink, in clothes, in fire and in reparation of damages to property, and so on, before you made that fine discovery? Not one farthing: not one penny. And, therefore, do not charge it to my account." This is what Scrooge said to his clerk, Mr. Cratchit. "Marley's dead." This is what Mr. Marley said to Scrooge. "To-morrow is the birthday of my numberless grandchildren. To-morrow is Decoration Day." This is what Scrooge said to the three ghosts. "Do you think, because the chariot of the sun has gone out of this world, that it has gone out of your mind? That anything so relating to time has no relation to you? Ah, but I forget! You don't believe in time!" This is what Tiny Tim said to Scrooge. A Recipe for Christmas Dinner Christmas is a time for joy, and joy is a reasonable expectation. Though we don't have to feed others, we should have the blessings of our own lives and invite the
