New in Photoshop CS4 In addition to the basic changes in Photoshop CS4, a number of new features that ease your editing work are included in Photoshop CS4. Some of them are described in the following list: The new Perspective mode adds the ability to correct a perspective distortion on an image, such as by cropping a picture and then viewing it in a flattened format (with no perspective). Shadow and Highlight tools are now available directly from the Shadows/Highlights panel. To use these tools, select Shadows/Highlights, and then click the Shadow/Highlights tab. The Liquid Rescale filter from the Liquify filter allows you to increase or decrease the number of pixels in a particular portion of your image. For example, you can increase the size of a portion of a picture to make it appear larger than the rest of the image or reduce the size to make it appear smaller. There is a new UI for working in the Content Aware Fill command. This command fills an area of an image that matches the color of the pixels in that area, and you can resize and change the color of the fill. Getting a feel for the editing toolbars One of the most important things to know about Photoshop is how to use the different toolbars in the Editor window. They contain the tools you'll use most often when working with Photoshop. In Photoshop CS4, the Tool Palettes and the Developer Toolbar are displayed in the Editor window when you display the Control panel. You can follow these steps to get a feel for the toolbars: 1. Select the Tool Palettes and Developer Toolbar from the Control panel. 2. Click the arrow next to the control to display the All toolbars or just the Tools. 3. Choose the toolbars you want to display in the Editor window by choosing Window⇒Toolbars. The individual toolbars are displayed on the right side of the Editor window. Detective Superintendent Peter MacDonald, commander of crime operations for the homicide squad, said David Doherty of Croydon, New South Wales, was charged on Wednesday with one count of murder. MacDonald said a post-mortem examination was completed on the body of the 43-year-old man, a resident of the suburbs of northern Sydney, who died in hospital on Tuesday. MacDonald said the man had a gunshot wound to his chest and his death was not considered suspicious. The man's car was found burning at the scene after police received a call from a member of the public at around 1am on Tuesday. "The nature of the incident... has required the service of an officer at a local hospital in an advanced state of pregnancy," MacDonald said. "However she has recovered and is being cared for by family." The victim and Doherty knew each other and police are examining whether this was a murder-suicide, Detective Superintendent MacDonald said. While Doherty was remanded in custody, he made no comments to police during his appearance at Parramatta Bail Court in Sydney on Wednesday morning. Doherty was granted bail on a $1m surety and given a non-parole period of 12 months. He was also ordered not to approach the two survivors of the incident, and had to surrender his passport. Doherty faces one count of murder. ( AAP: Peter Rae ) MacDonald said the investigation is continuing and police are still trying to establish what happened. "At this stage of the investigation, our main concern is to assist the family and friends of the deceased by conducting a thorough and timely investigation. "This will enable us to provide answers and we will be able to assist the families and friends of the deceased." A formal identification of the man has not been released.
