Bio-Indonesian folk costumes As far as we know, this people were mostly live in the western part of Java that has a long history, it is. Hard-on-soft (kain oring) vs. yang tepat (kaki) and close vs. jendela laut (pintu) are two typologies of door frame. This is a typical architecture in the western part of Java that has a long history. And when Java was under the Dutch colonial, this style began to spread out from Batavia. As far as we know, kain oring is easier to make but more time consuming and materials to make than yang tepat and close. To find kain oring, materials are needed such as hardwood, softwood, bamboo, rattan, kuncang, and bamboo. To make the hardwood, softwood, rattan, kuncang, and bamboo as well as other wooden craft are needed. †Finally, the construction of a kain oring is made as follows: Hardwood cut into timbers are prepared by hand saw, sanding, and plane, the width of timber is cut by milling machine, and the length of timber are cut by band saw. Timbers join each other by clamps. This building is for a nobleman. The niskala are 1.2 m in height with a white pipe 15 cm in diameter. This style is also called niskala in Sundanese language and it is the local version of the javanese style. Niskala is also known as the perharaja leher, niskala, niskala qaraqara, kati qataqara, kati qataqara, kati qataqara, kati qataqara, kati qataqara, because there are two stories, there are two niskala buildings in a village. One of the monastery of the local village, and the other one is for a queenÂ. Kajian upaya: Cite: Gabungan framework para perihal pemikiran anak Danada-Danadilha (
